Wise up and Rise Up!

Jesus carried a special concern for the innocence and welfare of children. Because we follow Him, we gladly support Christian children’s homes in New Mexico and Colorado with food drives, mission trips, and money. We also support Neema House and their outreach to orphans in Tanzania, not to mention Orphan’s Lifeline of Hope. Good!

Nevertheless, in case you have not noticed, children across our own cultural landscape are increasingly at risk. The preferences and perversions of selfish adults have been glorified and empowered to an unprecedented extent even as the family is falling apart. We see this on the rise in today’s news and entertainment media, our schools, our corporations, our courts, and even some churches. Even private spaces are not safe, including restrooms and wherever kids can access computers, phones, and televisions. Without strong parents and supportive church families, children are easy prey.

God is far too good to ignore the willful corrupting of children taking place on our watch. Children are being sacrificed to sexual ideologies and agendas that will destroy them, body and soul. Even the White House actively promotes a transgender agenda that advocates for the irreversible mutilation and manipulation of children who are confused over their identity—a confusion our culture fosters in spades.

Having legally redefined marriage to suit selfish adult preferences and to promote a genderless agenda, we have thereby diminished motherhood and fatherhood. God is not amused. In the face of such evil, we must rise up to protect our children, body and soul. But that’s not enough. It is also of our call to prepare our children themselves for future onslaughts of evil after
