What If?

The most important thing about worship is not what we do, how we do it, when we do it, or where. It's WHO we worship. God and God alone is our highest concern for worship! He comes first above all other concerns.

Is it possible to believe that WHO we worship is the most important concern and still believe that when, where, and how are very important concerns?

Yes! Again, the answer is yes!

We love and worship God with our whole heart, mind, soul, and strength. Notice I left out the word "theory." We are not called to love and worship God merely in theory. We are called to love and serve Him in real time and space, and to do it both personally and together as a family. To do this, we need a set time and place where we can gather to give God the praise He deserves. Nevertheless, we do not worship the time, the place, or even the process. We worship God and God alone.

What if our electricity went off at 10:45 AM on Sunday morning? Seriously, what if? Could we still worship God? Yes, and we would! The lack of electricity may slightly change what we do and how, but the fact remains that we would still have to do something and figure out how best to do it together. But God does not need electricity to receive our worship. Still, I'm grateful for electricity!

Can we worship under a tree? Sure. Just don't worship the tree. And don't use the tree as an excuse for neglecting worship and fellowship with your brothers and sisters in your church family.

The main thing is to keep the main thing the main thing. And the main thing in worship is not a thing. It's God!
